ONE OF HERRMANN'S STORIES. The Magician Tells How He Played Poker for Fun with an Innocent Youth.

"I never play cards in earnest," said the great Herrmann after the show last night. great Herrmann after the show last night.

"Those who know me wouldn't play with me, anyhow, and, of course, I wouldn't take any advantage of those who don't. But I remember one night, not a thousand years ago, that, in order to amuse a few friends, I sat down to a quiet little came of poker. You see, it was this way. I met the friends and was introduced to an innocent-looking youth of the dude persuasion, whose face was as vacant in expression as a pound of putty. This youth had been bragging of his powers as a poker-player, and had made the others so tired that they whispered me to take the conceitout of him just for the fun there was in it, I was agreeable and we sat down.

"In Philadelphia?" "In Philadelphia?"

"Bless you, no. They don't play poker in Philadelphia. This was in —. Well, when we began the game I allowed the youngster to win in order to get him interested, and, the better to enjoy the circus, the others dropped out and my victim and I had the table to ourselves. Of course I was to give him back whatever I won from him—that was understood. We didn't play with chips, as we had none, but made the game a quarter ante and a dollar limit, so that we could use the money without making any awkward change. Every time my callow friend won a pot he put the silver and bills in his pocket and would chip in the stuff as he needed it. After he had won a respectable pile I began to get my work in, and by handling and dealing the cards in the card my own peculiar way I soon had his pile in a fair way to innocuous desuctude. Occasionally I would let him win, just to keep the fun up, and I don't know but what I enjoyed my opponent's innocence as much as did my friends. But all things must have an end. Finally I cleaned him ou much to his surprise, and ordered a bottle.

My friends couldn't keep it in any longer.

"'I say, old man,' said one, 'do you know who you've been playin' with?'

"'Yes,' replied my victim, calmly, 'Herrmann, the magician, and he's a good play-

"This was somewhat of a surprise all round. But I laughed and handed him back the money I had won. He wouldn't take it. No, sir. Said I had won it; had he won mine he would have kept it, and under no consideration would he take it back. That was not his way of playing poker. It was no use for me to protest, to tell him that I had deliberately robbed him. He was sorry that he had not got in with a man who didn't play a square game, but that was his look-out. He ought to have seen that he was being fleeced, but as he had been fleeced, and with his eyes open, too, he was not the man to squeal. I open, too, he was not the man to squeal. I tell you I felt mean. I didn't think it half so funny then as I did before. But all I could do or say made no impression on my victim, and with a dignified bow he left us. "'Ali I can do,' I said to one of my friends, will be to give this money to some charitable institution.'

"Then I gave the waiter one of the bills I had won to pay for the wine. He came back with it and the information that it was a counterfeit. Yes, sir. That guileless youth had won my good money and rung in over a hundred dollars' worth of paper on me that wasn't worth a cent a pound. I'm pretty good on handling cards, but poker is a mighty uncertain game-mighty uncer-

The author of "King Solomon's Mines" and "Allan Quatermain" has had much laid to his charge—from plagiarism to down-right lying, but as time goes on it becomes every day more apparent that the only South African romancist has a considerable modicum of truth at the bottom of his seem-ingly most bizarre conceptions.

Take, for instance, the Mapai, a small tribe of bush people living between the Kaverezi and Yankotoi, who, among a num-Kaverezi and Yankotoi, who, among a number of other curious habits, slit the skin over both shoulders in the form of a loop, and which, by being upheld, permits a second cuiticule to grow beneath. A corresponding slit is made on each side of all the young ladies of this interesting people, the loops, when the girls develop into womanhood, forming four "natural" resting places for a child, either at the breast or back, the straps of flesh on the shoulders being for the hands or arms, and the others for each baby leg.

Cart Loads of Lizards.

Skowhegan Reporter.

A great destruction of life took place upon the old Lawton farm, two miles up the river. For several generations there has been a muskrat pond about twenty rods from the Kennebec, consisting of a half acre or more, besides eight acres of splendid land which was made worthless by its surroundings, which was drained across to the river by laying a sewer under ground tive to nine feet deep. When the ground five to nine feet deep. When the the men noticed that it was charged with animated life, and as the bottom began to animated life, and as the bottom began to appear the struggle increased, and it was estimated there were from two to four cart loads of lizards from two to five inches in length, mixed with reptiles shaped like the tadpole, four and five inches long, and a promiscuous collection of bugs and smaller fry, some of which looked like green grass-hoppers.

WHY COUGH.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude im pels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G.W.Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E.
